

Peking University Institute for Global Health and Development (iGHD)
Assistant Professor / Associate Professor / Full Professor (Fulltime /Affiliated Positions)
Job Location: Beijing, China

The Peking University Institute for Global Health and Development (PKU-iGHD), a newly established university-wide interdisciplinary institution, invites application for full-time and affiliated faculty positions. Rankings are open, including Assistant Professor, Associate Professor with or without tenure, and tenured Full Professor and Affiliated Professor. Salaries are competitive and will be commensurate with qualification and experience.

Candidates must have obtained doctoral-level training in a relevant field, especially in economics, global health, or health diplomacy and global governance, and should demonstrate significant scholarship and excellent teaching ability. Candidates with strong quantitative research capability are most preferred. Research fields include but are not limited to health and development economics, global health and policy, epidemiology, international relations and global governance.

Applications will be accepted and reviewed on an ongoing basis and short-listed candidates will be contacted for online / in-person interviews.

Please send email application to Stella Yin: ghd@pku.edu.cn; office phone: +86 (10) 6275-7319. Application package should include the following (all in PDF format): cover letter, curriculum vitae, representative publications, and at least three letters of recommendation (sent separately by referees).

About PKU Institute for Global Health and Development (<http://www.ghd.pku.edu.cn/>)

Today's world is undergoing unprecedented transformations. The COVID-19 pandemic has profoundly prioritized the importance and urgency of global health in human development. Drawing on the university wide resources, the Peking University Institute for Global Health and Development (iGHD) is launched in responding to the world common challenges facing global health and human development. As a highly multidisciplinary institute, the iGHD primary faculty body includes both fulltime faculty and joint-appointment professors mainly from the PKU Faculty of Economics and Management, School of International Studies, and School of Public Health, coupled with affiliated leading scholars from oversea universities and research institutions.

Through its scientific research, global partnership and social responsibility, the Peking University iGHD is aiming to make contributions to the world sustainable and inclusive development by delivering global public goods for human health and welfare improvement. The Institute also strives to train the next-generation leaders through advanced graduate programs in global health and development in collaboration with world leading academic institutions.

